Abstract

Farming is a "true" copy of natural processes, in which the bodies of all kinds coexist. The species maintain agro-biodiversity linkages and influence each other under physical conditions provided by rotation - in fact, all natural and space-temporal simultaneously, the result of human actions. Anthropogenic factor manages environment to cover needs, but questionable durability repercussions in the real sense of the word. The situation was emphasized through both agricultural intensification and industrialization of agricultural products for consumption to prolong the global market. As a result, expanded consumer awareness campaigns for healthy nutrition, based on the consumption of fresh produce.
